EXECUTIVE

This study analysis the telecommuting, a way of working independent of geographical location of the office or company, facilitated by the use of computer and telematics instruments and characterized by flexibility in the Organization, and in the way of progress. It is a notion strongly tied to the evolution of the technologies and then subjected to a continuous transformation.

The study analysis, in particular, to list of benefits resulting from such work, and at the same time the impossibility to apply them in Italian context, strongly influenced by a hierarchical model.
